conformed subject vehicle, a 2008 HUMMER H2, old injuries were aggravated and new permanent injuries developed.

2- Plaintiff sustained a brain injury, profound headaches, a torn knee rotator cuff causing limited and painful movement, an umbilical hernia and the developed numbness of the peripheral nerves in hands and the suspected calcification of the heart arteries, heart pains, as a result of use of the subject vehicle, which caused shortness of breath, exhaustion and collapse, from the elevated vibration and low-load, off-road tires, equipped on the subject vehicle, which created a bouncy and uncushioned hop on a flat road, and the extended elevated vibration surges were like electrical piercing currents, which pierced the optical nerves to the point of intolerance, which required immediate abandonment and exit of the subject vehicle, without warning.

3- Plaintiff, was previously involved in a car accident and had sustained a hernia of cervical spine and a lumbar hernia, in which plaintiff was attending physical therapy when purchased the subject vehicle, which was discovered through MRI scans months after the purchase and use of the subject vehicle.

5- Five independent inspections were conducted on the vehicle and all inspections documented the existence of an elevated vibration, and several recommendations and attempts to conform were unsuccessful in repairing the subject vehicle, it was determined that the engine timing is off, and other factory settings are not adjusted to specs, plus brake sensor wiring factory recalls were not performed which caused squealing noises, and rear end noises, and the tires were the wrong tires for the heavy truck, which were discontinued by the tire manufacturer.

6- The plaintiff had been using rental autos for the past 20 months, which further caused economic hardships, discomforts, pains and inconveniences.
